What's new — or newly reopening — in 2012? So much. Here are eight notable attractions.

» Egypt's minister of state for antiquities recently announced the partial reopening of the Avenue of Sphinxes in Luxor, which had been closed for renovations. The department will unveil a 500-foot stretch of the 1.7-mile avenue, lined with hundreds of the mythical creatures, in mid-March.

» Practice those Spidey skills on the new SkyPoint Climb on Australia's Gold Coast. The country's highest external building walk starts on Level 77 of the residential Q1 tower and mounts nearly 300 stairs to the summit, almost 900 feet above sea level. Tours by day or at twilight begin Saturday, Jan. 14.
